How to Plan Your Hut Trip

STEP 1 Study the map on the back of this brochure to calculate elevations, distances and locations of the huts which huts best suit your abilities and are offered at the 10th Mountain Hut Association’s annual membership meeting, which takes place in November. Your membership allows you to plan your hut trip with others who share your interests.

STEP 2 Designate a group organizer who will be responsible for making the reservation and distributing all information to each member of the group. Since the trip organizer may not be experienced in the backcountry, we recommend that your group discuss how the reservations will be made in the field and who will be the leader, particularly if problems arise.

STEP 3 Book in advance to reserve dates at the hut of your choice. Full payment by credit card is due at this time. You can check hut availability and book huts online at www.huts.org, or call us at 970/925-5775. Remember, hut space is often available during the mid-week.

STEP 4 Purchase topographic maps from 10th Mountain Hut Association offices or on the web. The official winter guidebook has route descriptions, maps, and photos for all the 10th Mountain and Summit huts. Also includes equipment and clothing checklist and other valuable information. $19.95

STEP 5 Refer to the suggested equipment list provided in this brochure to assemble the gear required.

STEP 6 Sign waivers online before departure.

STEP 7 Get an early start and don’t forget the hut confirmation letter with hut locks combinations.
